Hello to all of our friends in Luxembourg. My husband, Kevin and I are looking forward to our 4th visit to your beautiful country for Friendship Week, June 18 -25. My father, Sylvester Stenger served under Gen'l Patton in the 90th Infantry Division, 357 headquarters. They called themselves the Tough Ombres. I will be proud to represent him.

My uncle, Saul Kadison, was killed in action crossing the Sauer River on February 12, 1945. He is buries in Hamm. He was a Silver Star recipient. Myself and my two brothers are the only members of his family that are surviving. We would very much like to attend a memorial celebration. Kindly keep me informed as to the dates and arrangements.

Thank you.

I want to thank all the members of the US Vet Friends of Luxembourg for all the care and planning that went into the tour in June. The people or Luxembourg and all the residents of the towns that we visited couldn't have been more kind, generous, and hospitable. My uncle, Pvt. Tony Ruzich, Jr. died on Christmas morning 1944 in an attack by the 317th Regiment of the 80th Division on Kehmen, Luxembourg. It is gratifying that almost 70 years later the people of Luxembourg are thankful and have not forgotten the losses and sacrifices made by the American soldiers and their families. Thank you.

Hello,

After returning from a family reunion this summer, I'm inspired to learn more about a family member interned at the Luxembourg American Cemetery.

He is Joseph G. Feiley, Staff Sergeant (KIA) and recipient of the U.S. Army Distinguished Service Cross. His location in the cemetery is Plot: E, Row: 14, Grave: 24. He was killed 19-Feb-1945.

He fought with the 328th Infantry Regiment, 26th Infantry division, Company "F."

I'm searching the web for any information about him. He is a hero in our family.

Is there anyway I can get a picture of his marker?

Sincerely,

Mark Brock

Hello! This year was the 10th year Bobbie and I have made it back to the USVF Week. Again it was a great week. Dedicating three new Monuments to the 80th Inf Div. was more than we ever expected. We had a total of 34 members of the 80th Div. families attending. 8 Veterans and the rest families of those Veterans. Again you did a wonderful job of making everyone comfortable and glad they made the trip. If there is any Veteran that reads this note and hasn't been back to Lux. since the war you should try to go there this year in June, you will never regret you decision. You are treated like Royalty and more. It is a week you will never forget.

Found me when American Luxembourg Society

In 1996 I discovered your museum by accident while traveling with my 16 year old daughter. It was a wonderful find and she was very interested, being, like her dad, fascinated by history. It also harkened me back many years.

In November of 1974 I was in Luxembourg, hiking the roads and forests with a college buddy. We were staying in the youth hostels; taking the local trains (we affectionately referred to them as the "Bonzai Express"), and spending many days in the towns and forests of the Ardennes. We ended up spending 30 days in your duchy.

I am writing because this changed me forever. In fact, I often define my life as being of two parts: That which came before 1974 (I was 22 at the time) and that which came after.

My college friend and I had traveled for two months prior to coming to Luxembourg. We were traveling rather haphazardly, with no real plan. . .just two guys taking a semester off from university to see Europe. But I had always been drawn to history and particularly to WWII in Europe. I was well aware of the significance of Luxembourg to WWII and particularly to the Ardennes Offensive, but had never made a real study of the campaign. I had long before read a copy of John Toland's, Battle: Story of the Bulge, and soon after arriving "in country" in 1974 saw a copy in a shop in Luxembourg City. Thus began my journey into something larger than I had bargained for. I began rereading Toland's book, which is very detailed in its description of many small unit actions during the battle. I became engrossed in the accounts of actions on both sides, and spent many days tracing the fighting through Diekirch, Clervaux, Vianden, and surrounding areas, as well as traveling into Belgium. On three different occasions I walked from the Wiltz train station up the long winding road to Cafe Schumann and Hill 390; quietly traversing the areas adjacent to the road; finding the foxholes and helmet liners (and an intact German helmet); ammunition and links, shovels, leather belts: Many, many remnants still at that time. It was late November and on many days Luxembourg was shrouded in that low-lying fog.

What I didn't count on was the changes all of this began to produce in me. I do not know if I believe in spirits or ghosts. I do know I felt things in those forests. When my college friend and I were on Hill 390 near Cafe Schumann one foggy and wet November day, we split up and looked on our own. When we finally came back together we just looked at each other, not speaking for a long time. One of us, I don't know which one, finally said; "Did you feel it?" We both had. . .the presence. Like we were in a cathedral. We both felt we were in some sacred place; really FELT it. Every day I walked and searched I felt more a part of the land. On the first day near Cafe Schumann I had taken an 8mm cartridge from a foxhole. That night we were alone at the youth hostel at Ettelbruck. We were almost always alone in the youth hostels in November. They were quite primitive in those days, and it was off season. I kept looking at the cartridge. Suddenly I told

John, "I'm going back. . .I'm putting it back." All at once I felt like a grave robber and knew it had to go back. So we took many, many pictures, but never again took anything from the battlefields: We took nothing out of Luxembourg but pictures.

Luxembourg in 1974 was still full of bullet-riddled buildings: It was not a prosperous country, as it is now. The war still felt close.

In the last couple of weeks in Luxembourg I walked alone, without John. I needed to be alone with the countryside and the villages. I seldom spoke to anyone. It had become a spiritual journey. When it came time to go back to the States, I knew I should stay. . .try and find some way to stay. I just knew somewhere inside that I belonged there. But I didn't stay: I did what I was "supposed" to do and returned, finished my university education, raised a family, had a career. But I was never the same: The world was never really the same. All of the things which before had seemed so important; my classes and my grades: After I came back, they just were no longer very important. I never quite knew why.

I had changed forever. Luxembourg; the cold and misty forests; perhaps the ghosts of those young men; something had fundamentally changed who I was. I was quieter, more serious, less concerned with the day-to-day matters. I think a part of me remained behind, in the Ardennes. I will always see your country as a second home.

This year June 2005 , was my 8th trip back to Lux. since WW II. Each year the USVF come up with a program that supersedes the previous year. This year my son Gary Lee traveled to Lux. with me since Bobbe didn't think she could make the trip. Gary had a great time and can't get over the friendliness of the Lux. people and the way we Veterans are treated.

This year was a very special year for I was given the Title of Honorary Citizen of Heiderscheid Lux. That was one of the proudest moments of my life.

If you haven't made it back to Lux. since WWII what Are you waiting on, I assure you it will be the best vacation you have ever taken, and the memories will last a lifetime.

My wife and I had the honor of being among those attending Luxembourg-American Friendship week this year and meeting the wonderful people of US Veterans Friends, Luxembourg. They overwhelmed me with two (undeserved) awards. I am very grateful. One of their members, Denise Thill (with her local friend, Josee Milcius-Sassel) joined us for lunch in Ocala, Florida recently.

We also met, in Dellen, a lady I had photographed in 1944 who graciously posed for another photo. Our visit is on the website at www.Grosbous.lu. We learned her niece is now Lu. Ambassador to the US, Arlette Conzemius. We visited the Lu. embassy in Washington two weeks ago, and met the very charming lady ambassador.
